REVERSALS BY SUPREME COURT

Sustains Exceptions of the De- fendants in Maui Case.

In an opinion written by Justice Wilder the Supreme Court has sustained the exceptions of the defendant to the verdict for the plaintiff in the suit of ejectment brought by Maukaa Silva against the Wailuku Sugar Company in the Circuit Court of the second district at Wailuku. The decision says: "In ejectment a verdict for plaintiff claiming title by inheritance, the evidence showing that the paper title was in defendant, and the jury being instructed that the plaintiff could not also claim by adverse possession, is contrary to law and must be set aside."

The Supreme Court has also reversed a judgment of District Magistrate Andrade, quashing a garnishee process to collect a judgment for $255.20 in the suit of Harry T. Mills against John W. Cathcart.

Justice Ballou says in the course of the opinion: "We may remark in passing that the printed form of garnishee summons in use in the district court is not intended to dispense with the necessity of having all necessary allegations appear in the declaration and that it would be better practice to have such allegations over the signature of the plaintiff instead of appearing solely over the signature of the magistrate."

AMUSEMENTS

Eva Pollard as the Geisha Girl.
If I had a great big bowl of glass, And you were a goldfish bright, I'd shut you up in that bowl of glass And call you my dear little goldfish lass,
So never a day of the year would pass But you would charm my sight.

If you were a real geisha girl, As last night you were in the play, I would hie me straight to old Japan, I would wear a kimono and flutter a fan,
And be a most gallant Japanese man, If you wouldn't send me away.

Alas, you were only acting last night, Though you danced like a sly sunbeam. The lilt of your dainty lips I hear, It seems you are whispering in my ear,
But I'm old and ugly and grouchy, I fear,
So, of course, it is only a dream.

It was "The Geisha" that the Lilliputians played last night, and every note of the music, every pose of the chorus, every dainty piece of dancing shut out the years and took us back. It was good to sit there and hear the rumble of the busses through Trafalgar Square, to smell the acrid thickness of the smoke that drifts over from Charing Cross, to catch the glint of the puddle-spangled surface of Pall Mall, to feel the heel of the hansom as it turned the corner and then to hear once again the inimitable, indescribable roar of Piccadilly Circus and know that we were silly youngsters again with, perhaps, windows screwed in our eyes and unpaid-for and very perfect dress clothes on our backs, but going to sit in a box with the one and only girl that ever happened and mutter between the acts that "Hadya Coffin is an awfully conceited ass."

That is just one of the ways in which the kiddies made their appeal. It was far and away the best thing they have done here during this visit, and that means that it was superlative.

The whole piece was played with a wonderful snap. Eva Pollard, as the geisha girl, to whom a British naval officer makes love, was so charming that surely all the real geishas must take lessons from her. In the Goldfish and Kissing songs she sang clearly and sweetly, and the suspicion of a lisp lent to her words a daintiness impossible to describe.

Ivy Pollard, as Mollie Seymour, changed her wig four times and looked prettier each time. When she came out for the Nursery song, leading a "rickshaw, the right wheel caught in the scenery and capsize the vehicle, but the little girl carried the thing right through with splendid nerve and the audience rose in its might and cheered. When she took on the disguise of another geisha and sang about "Roly Poly San," with her pink dress and her pink parasol, she captured the hearts of everybody who had the good fortune to be there to see her.

Teddy McNamara has a very good comedy part as the Chinese keeper of the tea-house. To know just how funny an Irish Chinaman can be, you must go to see him. The Heintz Pickles both had good parts and were as imitatively funny as ever. "The Geisha" is great, simply great. J. N. D.

Vaudeville at Park Theater.
In addition to the entire change of films tonight at the Park theater, the management will present vaudeville sketches between picture displays.

George Milne will give illustrated songs, the pictures being thrown on the screen, while the Melnotte sisters will give vaudeville specialties. The Melnotte sisters recently arrived on the Alameda, and are young people who attracted much favorable comment on the trip of the steamer. They are a talented duo, and Manager Harry Werner is satisfied they will be an attraction to the Park's patrons. Other vaudeville artists will appear at the Park in the near future.

Band Concert Tonight.

The Hawaiian band will give a public concert tonight at Thomas Square commencing at 7:30 o'clock. The following program will be rendered:

PART I.

Two step: The Coquette Lafort
(a) Venician Nights Lucatoni
(b) That's Me Pietromarchi
Barn Dance: Mousmousse Vives
Selection: Siegfried Wagner

PART II.

Vocal: Hawaiian Songs, Ar. by Berger
The Kaiser Waltzer (new) Strauss
Ballad: Eventide (new) Hume
Finale: Hungarian Dance (new) Brahms
The Star Spangled Banner

The Art Theater.

There are two feature films on the screen at the Art theater today, one, the Power of Labor, a strong subject and one which should appeal to all classes at this time in view of the communications from "Employer" and "Teacher" published in this paper at this time. Another, The Discoverers, is full of human interest and is one that is sure to win the plaudits of the audience. There are several other good films shown during the afternoon and evening.

A Man Bought a House

But Didn't Get It

WHY, HOW WAS THAT?

Well! Paid the landlord the full cost of a house and lot, but the landlord still owns the property, and intends to keep it. HE RENTED. We see people every day who have paid enough money for rent receipts to buy a house, and many of them will pay for another house the same way if they keep on renting. You are buying a house, anyway, when you pay rent, but you will never own it. Why not get something for the money?
